Ladysmith-Elmont Rebuild Project

At Dominion Energy, we are committed to providing safe, reliable, and affordable electricity to the communities we serve. You are receiving this postcard because we would like to update you on the Ladysmith-Elmont 500 kilovolt (kV) Electric Transmission Line Rebuild Project. In April 2022, the Virginia State Corporation Commission (SCC) issued a final order, approving the project. Construction is scheduled to begin in early 2024.

The existing electric transmission line in Caroline and Hanover Counties is approximately 26 miles in length and has been in operation for more than five decades. The structures and conductor will be rebuilt to continue providing reliable electric service to the area. The line will be rebuilt within the existing right of way; therefore, no new permanent right of way is required.

The existing steel lattice structures will be replaced mostly with galvanized steel lattice structures and some 3-pole structures. The new structure heights will vary, depending on location. We invite you to compare existing and new structure heights, view structure types and locations, by visiting our backyard application located on our project site.

More information will be provided as we approach the construction start date.

Your electric service is not scheduled to be interrupted by this project. Thank you for understanding and patience as we work to ensure the continued safety and reliability of the electric grid.
